gold. Nevertheless, a minimum charge in conformity with the International Telegraph Regulations for the time being in force may be collected by the State Telegraph Administration of each country in respect of telegrams originating in its country.

From the amount per word collected by the State Telegraph Administration of each country of origin, there shall be deducted, Eight centimes gold as cable-rate to be equally divided between the two State Telegraph Administrations; Ten centimes gold as terminal rate for the British Isles and Seven centimes gold as terminal rate for the Netherlands.

Each State Telegraph Administration shall retain the entire sum which it shall have collected, including accessory charges other than the charges for prepaid replies.

Nevertheless, the British State Telegraph Administration shall credit the Netherland State Telegraph Administration with Eleven centimes gold per word, in respect of British-Netherland telegrams, transmitted to the Netherlands, and the Netherland State Telegraph Administration shall credit the British State Telegraph Administration with Fourteen centimes gold per word, in respect of British-Netherland telegrams transmitted to the British Isles.

The charges for prepaid replies shall be credited in accordance with the International Telegraph Regulations.

II.

British-Netherland telegrams, which at the request of the sender are diverted from the direct route, shall be subject to the rates and provisions of the International Telegraph Convention of St. Petersburgh (and any Convention in substitution therefor to which Great Britain and the Netherlands are Parties) and of the Service Regulations thereto annexed.

British-Netherland telegrams which in consequence of interruption of the direct route between the British Isles and the Netherlands are sent over the system of any other Administration, shall not be subjected to any additional charge, the charge of Twenty-five centimes gold per word being divided among the Administrations taking part in such diverted transmission in such proportions as may from time to time be agreed upon between them, and neither the British State Telegraph Administration nor the Netherland State Telegraph Administration shall be entitled to be credited with any portion of the charges in respect of such telegrams in conformity with Article 1 hereof.

Nothing in this Article is to be interpreted as affecting the liberty of the British State Telegraph Administration to enter into arrangements with the Telegraph Administrations of France, Belgium, or Germany or all of them for the due apportionment of the moneys derived from the cable-rates on messages passing over the British-French, British-Belgian and British-German cables, or as nullifying any right, which by reason of its ownership in these cables, the British State Telegraph Administration may itself possess, to receive a portion, or the whole, of the moneys in question.

III.

The provisions of the International Telegraph Convention of St. Petersburgh (and any Convention in substitution therefor to which Great Britain and the Netherlands are Parties) and of the Service Regulations thereto annexed, as already revised or as they may be revised by future International Conferences, are declared applicable to the intercourse between the British Isles on the one hand and the Netherlands on the other hand in all that is not regulated by the present Agreement.
IV.

The British State Telegraph Administration charges itself at the joint expense of the two countries with the care of the proper maintenance of the cables, and shall for this purpose keep at its disposal a suitable cable-ship and the necessary cable.

The Netherland State Telegraph Administration agrees to pay to the British State Telegraph Administration during the time that the cable-ship is in commission for the repair of the submarine cables such sums for hire of the cable-ship as shall from time to time be mutually agreed upon.

Moreover the two countries shall pay in equal shares the further cost of cable, cable-stores, coals, mooring, unmooring, pilotage and dues, etc.

If at any time it should be necessary to hire a cable-ship in consequence of the cable-ships belonging to the British State Telegraph Administration not being available, the cost of hiring shall be borne equally by the two Administrations.

V.

The present Agreement shall come into force on the first of April One thousand nine hundred and twenty-six; and nothing contained herein or in the previous Agreements shall have any application to telegrams exchanged between the Irish Free State and the Netherlands.

It shall remain in force for an indefinite time, and for a term of six months from the day on which it shall have been denounced by one of the Contracting Parties.

Done in duplicate and signed at London on the thirteenth April One thousand nine hundred and twenty-six and at The Hague on the twenty-seventh April One thousand nine hundred and twenty-six.

His Britannic Majesty's Postmaster General.
