The Polish-German Boundary Commission having at its meeting of March 13, 1922, adopted a proposal submitted by the Italian and Japanese members of the Commission on September 15th, 1921, whereby the ownership of three buildings belonging to the port installations on territory remaining German is attributed to Poland, without transfer of sovereignty, in order that Poland may have the use of the port of Kurzebrack, and whereby access to those buildings is guaranteed to Poland, Poland and Germany have resolved to conclude an agreement in execution of this decision, and for this purpose have appointed as Plenipotentiaries:

In particular, the Polish Government may convert or construct buildings in accordance with plans of its own on the territory recognised as being in Polish ownership. The officials entrusted with the supervision of buildings shall, in the exercise of such supervision, take full account of Polish requirements for which the Boundary Commission has given a guarantee. The Polish Government shall issue orders to Polish officials and employees occupying the buildings mentioned in Article 1 or discharging their duties therein to obey German laws.
