The President of the Czechoslovak Republic, of the one part, and the President of the Turkish Republic, of the other part, being desirous of determining the conditions under which Czechoslovak nationals may establish themselves in Turkey and Turkish nationals in Czechoslovakia, have decided to conclude a Convention in accordance with the Treaty of Friendship between Czechoslovakia and Turkey dated October 11th, 1924, and have appointed for that purpose as their Plenipotentiaries:

The President of the Czechoslovak Republic:

M. Miloš Kobr, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Czechoslovak Republic at Angora; and

The President of the Turkish Republic:

M. Ali Djenani Bey, Former Minister of Commerce, Deputy for Ghazi Aintab

Who, having communicated their full powers found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following provisions:

Convention
between Czechoslovakia and Turkey respecting conditions of residence and business.

Article 1.

Nationals of either of the Contracting Parties shall have the right to establish themselves and reside on the territory of the other Party, and may, therefore, come, go and move about freely, subject to compliance with the laws, regulations and decrees in force in the country.

It is agreed that the provisions of the present Convention do not affect the right of each of the Contracting Parties to authorise or prohibit at will immigration into its country.

Article 2.

Each of the Contracting Parties reserves to itself the right to prohibit, in individual cases, nationals of the other Party from establishing themselves or residing within its territory, either under the order of a Court or in accordance with the laws and regulations relating to public morality, public health or mendicancy, or for other reasons affecting the internal or external safety of the State, and to expel them on these grounds. The other Party undertakes at any time to receive back its nationals and their families who have been expelled, provided that their nationality is certified by the competent consul.

Persons thus expelled shall be conveyed as far as the frontier or to the port of embarkation of the Party expelling them, at the cost of the latter.

Article 3.

Subject to compliance with the laws and regulations of the country, the nationals of either Contracting Party shall, on the same conditions as nationals of the most favoured nation, have the right to acquire, possess and dispose of all kinds of property, both movable and immovable, in the territory of the other Party, except in the cases provided for in their respective laws. They may, on the same conditions, dispose thereof freely by purchase, sale, gift, transfer, marriage settlement, testament, succession ab intestate, or in any other way.

In none of the above-mentioned cases shall they be subject to any charges, taxes or imposts of any description whatever other or higher than those which are or may hereafter be established in the case of nationals.

Article 4.

Nationals of either Contracting Party shall, in the territory of the other Party, have the right, on the same conditions as nationals of the most favoured nation and subject to compliance with the laws and regulations of the country, to engage in any kind of industry or commerce and to follow any trade or profession whatsoever, with the exception of occupations and professions which are or may hereafter be reserved for nationals.

Article 5.

Nationals of either Contracting Party shall not be required to pay any impost, tax or charge of any kind other or higher than those imposed on nationals of the country in order to stay or establish themselves in the territory of the other Party, or in respect of the exercise in that territory of any form of commerce or industry or of any trade or profession.

Nationals of either Contracting Party shall not be subject in the territory of the other Party to any charge, tax or impost, direct or indirect, other or higher than those which may be imposed on nationals of the country, in respect of their persons, property, rights and interests, or the acquisition, possession and enjoyment of such property, or in respect of the transfer of such property by grant, exchange or succession.

They shall, in particular, be authorised freely to export the proceeds of the sale of their property, and such property itself, subject to compliance with the legal provisions in force in the country, and in respect of such export they shall not, as aliens, be liable to taxes, duties and fees higher than those payable by nationals.

Article 6.

Nationals of either Contracting Party shall not be liable, in the territory of the other Party, to any military service, whether in the army, navy or air force or in the national guard or militia, or to any obligation or payment which replaces such service.
They shall only be liable to military contributions and requisitions imposed by law on nationals of the country.

Article 7.

The property of nationals of either Contracting Party may not be expropriated in the territory of the other Party except for reasons of public interest recognised by law as such, and the said foreign nationals shall be treated on terms of equality with nationals of the country.

Article 8.

Commercial companies, including industrial, financial, insurance, traffic and transport companies, which have their seat in the territory of either Contracting Party and which are there incorporated in accordance with the law of that country, shall be recognised as legal in the territory of the other Party, and may there bring or defend actions in the courts.

The admission of such companies to the exercise of their commerce or industry in the territory of the other Contracting Party shall be governed by the laws and regulations which are or may hereafter be in force in that territory.

The said companies, when transacting business in conformity with paragraph 2 above, shall not be required to pay in respect of the exercise of commerce or industry in the territory of the other Party any taxes, duties or charges other or higher than those imposed on national companies.

Subject to reciprocity and to compliance with the laws of the country, these companies may acquire all kinds of movable property, together with such immovable property as is necessary for the operations of the company, provided in this case that the acquisition of such property does not constitute the object of the company’s existence.

It is agreed that the above provisions shall not affect the taxes in respect of admission for which any foreign company is or may be liable in the territory of either of the Contracting Parties.

Article 9.

Nationals of either Contracting Party shall enjoy in the territory of the other Party the same treatment as nationals of the country as regards the legal and judicial protection of their persons and property.

Accordingly, they shall have free and unhindered access to the courts and may sue and be sued on the same conditions as nationals of the country, subject to the provisions concerning security for costs and free judicial assistance. These latter questions shall be governed by local legislation until they are settled by a special convention between the two Parties.

Article 10.

It is agreed that neither of the Contracting Parties may invoke the benefit of the most-favoured-nation clause provided for in this Convention for the purpose of claiming, on behalf of its nationals and companies, any rights other or more extensive than those which it grants to the nationals and companies of the other Contracting Party.

Article 11.

The present Convention shall enter into force one month after the date of the exchange of ratifications, and shall remain in force for three years. Unless denounced by one or other of the Contracting Parties at least six months before the expiration of the said period, it shall remain in force until it is denounced, and such denunciation shall not take effect until after the expiration of six months.

It shall be ratified and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Prague as soon as possible.

In faith whereof the respective Plenipotentiaries have signed the present Convention and have thereto affixed their seals.
