The sum paid as compensation may, however, in no case exceed the amount which would have been due to the sender if the letter had been lost.

2. The fact that the loss of or damage to articles sent from one contracting country to the other is due to unavoidable natural occurrences or the like (force majeure) shall not exempt the postal administration from liability in respect of mails.

Article 16.

Changes in Rates.

1. If as a result of inland increases in rates in one of the contracting countries it becomes necessary to change the charges fixed in this Agreement in the currency of the country in question, this change shall be made after a notification by the postal administration in question to the postal administrations of the other contracting countries.
